

How to Cite Sources

* A List of "Works Cited" or "References" is needed any time you conduct research. This list of sources should be included at the end of your paper. It is organized in alphabetical order.

TYPE OF SOURCE	KIND OF INFORMATION DOUND IN THIS SOURCE	CITATION FORMAT
Science Book	Basic background on science and its application. Project Ideas. Sometimes fairly current, sometimes not. Can be good for generating interest in a topic.	Author Last name, First name. Title of Book . City of Publication: Publisher, Date.
Text book	Basic science background and project ideas. May want to look at books from higher course level.	Editor Last name, First name, ed. Title of Book. City of publication: Publisher, Date.
Science Dictionary	Definition of Terms	"Topic", Title of Book . Edition, Date.
Journal Article	Basic background on science and its application. Current issues and scientific discoveries. Project ideas. Good for generating interest in a topic.	Author Last name, First name. "Title of Article." Name of Journal . Date: Pages.
Newspaper	Current and LOCAL issues and applications. Project ideas. Oregonian and NY Times have excellent weekly science sections.	Reporter Last name, First name. "Title of Article." Name of Newspaper [City, State] Date, Edition, Page.
Encyclopedia / Science Encyclopedia	Basic science background / historical background.	"Topic", Title of Book . Edition, Date.
Interview / Mentor	Key Information needed for an experimental design or procedure, access to literature and lab resources.	Person Interviewed. Type of interview (in person or telephone), Date.
Video: check out the school's loan list. Ex: NOVA, PBS	Basic background information on a specific topic. Good for generating ideas.	Title . Medium, Author, Director, Date.
Radio or TV	Current and local issues and applications	Title . Medium, Author, Director, Date.
Internet	Information is widely available. You may find basic science background, other student projects, real scientific data, chemical and safety information, online journals, ask-a-scientist sites. Sites that end in ".org", ".gov" or ".edu" may be more reliable than sites that end in ".com"	Author Last name, First name (if known), "Title of Work." Title of Complete Work (if applicable). Full http address. Date of visit. If author is unknown...write "author unknown"
Librarians	Never to be neglected! Ask them anything...	